Students Raise Hell Over Name Change

by SUSAN LOYD

Following the announcement by President William Anderson that Mary Washington College will receive a new name within the next month, students took to the streets in protest, turning the once quiet and demure campus into a hotbed of violence and destruction.

The announcement, which came at 9:45 p.m. on Thursday over WMWC airwaves, was brief, lasting only one minute. "The BOV has ruled that the name of Mary Washington will be changed," said Anderson. "The Board has selected the name Fredericksburg University of Continuing Knowledge, which will go into effect May 18, 1985. He added, "Please remember that student input is still welcome—although we may not agree, we are always open to discussion."

Immediately following the announcement, students organized into groups and marched on G.W. Hall. After breaking down the doors, the protesters went on a rampage inside the building and began their path of destruction. Angered students removed furniture from the building and threw it into a huge bonfire in Jefferson Square, chanting "Mary would roll over in her grave."

One student, returning to Bushnell from the library, described the scene as an "orgy of madness." "Man, I thought keg parties were wild until I saw this," he said.

The following day, a sit-in was held by demonstrators on Campus Drive. College Police attempted to remove the students, but were pelted with chicken croquettes and Itza Pizza box tops when they approached the lines. One angered senior shouted "We're mad as hell and we're not going to take it anymore."

In reaction to the violence, the administration called in the college's newly formed R.O.T.C. unit. The cadets pitched tents in Ball Circle and began emergency military drills. Executive Vice President A. Ray Merchant called the operation a "smart move." "I knew these kids would be good for something," he said.

Protest continued throughout the week-end, with demonstrators over taking the Pub and claiming it as their headquarters. One observer stated the sentiments of many when she said, "We're scared to death—it's like Kent State revisited out there."

In a final act of defiance, protesters took BOV members hostage and marched them to the grave of Mary Washington. There, at Meditation Rock, Board members were forced to chant the Alma Mater repeatedly, emphasizing the words Mary Washington, Mary Washington, Mary Washington. After twelve hours, all Board members relented to their captors and promised to never again tamper with the name MARY WASHINGTON.

SLS Moves to Twi-lite

by LAURA M. MASON

Many housing problems have arisen in the last few years. Each entering class has been larger than the one before. Now the upper classes have started to be effected by the student body growth. There is no place for our student leaders to live!

Due to the large number of applicants for women's and especially men's SLS housing, the administration has had to make some drastic changes. Next year all student leaders will be housed in the Twi-lite Motel in Park-and-Shop plaza across from the main campus.

President Anderson said, "We've been looking to expand our campus. The atmosphere of the Twi-lite and Park-and-Shop fits right in with the new image of our institution."

SLS students living in the Twilight next year are very excited about their new facilities. But many graduating students have expressed jealousy over the new change. Senior Rusty Berry said, "It's just not fair and I'm mad as hell!"

Manager of the Twi-lite, Norman Bates, said he will stay on as manager. Bates' mother also works at the SLS/motel, where she is in charge of all cleaning. Although Mrs. Bates was unavailable for comment, Norman Bates said "We're both looking forward to having all those bright young students here, and we hope we can have some lasting effect on many, if not all of them."

Room draw for the SLS students will be next week. Each student should come with a room mate in mind. This is a co-educational facility so the students may choose any room mate they want (male or female).

Editorial

Speak Easy

We at The Bull feel an ineffable compulsion to once again recant an encomium on the conspicuousness of communication.

Prolific vociferation is an exponent of any institution and we pertinaciously strive to enunciate likewise in our weekly dictums. Without propugnation or captiousness, but nonetheless with zeal and approbation, our writers transmute the ephemeral and the polemic.

It is our utmost duty and purpose to apprise our readers with pellucid and luminiferous coverage. Journalism postulates demiurgic, not garish style, as well as the use of empirical knowledge. We report with preciosity and exigency to keep you, the reader, on top of it all.

We recognize that at MWC (or whatever this place is called), communication is cardinal to the efficacious usance of all organizations on campus.

As the year comes to a cessation, we want to assure our readers that nothing will obviate our commitment to communication. As you can see, we will stop at nothing to assure clear, concise and UNDERSTANDABLE coverage of all campus events.

I Had a Dream

To the Editor:

I had a dream the other night. I dreamed that The Bull moved its offices to the proposed new student center from its cramped quarters in ACL, allowing it to have more space and better equipment so that the staff might produce an even higher quality paper.

In this dream The Bull wanted to offer the campus a new and better paper so that students who in the past claimed not to know what was happening on campus, would have no place to complain. The editors worked hard and produced very professional and entertaining newspapers. I dreamed the paper was a huge success. I was so happy in the dream that I thought, "It's too good to be true—I must be dreaming."

Although the editorial board members worked hard on the paper, they did not mind as much because meddling R.D.s and pushy S.A. officers had finally decided to keep out of the business of trying to determine what campus events merited coverage.

It was a great dream, but I wish it had been real because The Bull staff does know best how to fill its space. And, the funny thing is, the same people who are so eager to offer their advice to the paper are never around at 3 a.m. on Mondays when the board could really use their help with putting the final touches on the layout sheets.

Sincerely yours,

Ima Pissed
Slander editor, The Bull

Thanks Billy!

To the Editor:

I would like to extend a big, big thank you to President Anderson for coming to talk with us about this institution's name change. Please have him come back to tell us more stories. Thanks Billy!

Love,
Your little students

Birch Kicks the Bucket

by NELLE SOSEM

Lame duck editor of The Bull, Glenn Birch, Sunday evening in a final act of frustration, kicked the bucket, and left his post outside the Bull office where he had been holding an all night vigil, after the Bull staff refused him entry.

Birch was reportedly seen pounding the doors of the office crying, "Let me in, I need to help—just one more issue, please just one more..."

At one point Birch was restrained and carried off by Chief Bishop of the college police, but was released shortly, after promising never to return to the Bull office again.

Despite his promise, Birch was again pounding at the doors of the office several hours later.

Apparently greatly angered by Birch's return, Associate Editor Laura M. Mason threw open the office door and simply glared at Birch through the doorway for several minutes. Without a word, she turned on her heel and slammed the door in his face.

After this episode, Birch disappeared and has not been heard from since.

"Thank God we're finally rid of the tyrant," said Mason. Other staff members agreed, recalling how he had coerced them all into molding the college paper into a strict, conservative publication.

Features editor Ellen Moses recalled the time staff members tried unsuccessfully to take control of the paper once before and Birch fought them off yelling, "This is my paper and I'll do what I damn well please."

News editor Wendy LaRue expressed great relief that Birch was gone. "Quite frankly, I was getting a little fed up with his sexual advances when we were working late," she said. "And when you come right down to it," added LaRue, "we were all overworked and underpaid."

The rest of the staff echoed LaRue's sentiment.

Present Editor Susan Loyd said she was sure the female take-over of the staff would do wonders for the school paper. "We're considering changing the name of the paper to something more feminine—The Bull just sounds too masculine," she said.

Birch has not been heard of since his disappearance Sunday night, but is reportedly armed with a new exacto-knife and in a delirious condition. Anyone who has seen Birch is urged to call Chief Bishop at X5555.

"I'm sure he could see this take-over coming," said Mason. "He's the one that always said that 'being a man at a mostly women's college is sometimes more a nightmare than a dream.'"

Fuentes Hiding at MWC

by LAURA M. MASON

Carlos Fuentes is back!

Distinguished Visitor in Residence, Carlos Fuentes, who visited the school officially earlier this year, has returned to stay.

Carlos did not want anyone to know his location because he said someone would come and try to make him go back to his job at "that yucky school—Harvard." After much persuasion though, he decided to stop hiding, come out of the closet, and tell the real story.

In an interview with Carlos this reporter found him to be interested in more than just foreign affairs. Carlos has moved into the Spanish house with two other men and five women. Carlos has started writing a new novel on what life is really like in a co-ed dorm, at a small "conservative" college.

Carlos also enjoys watching the politics of this institution, almost as much as he enjoyed keeping track of the unrest in Central America. He says that this institution is facing a military coup, and that the BOV (Bored Visitors), who do not even work at or attend this institution, are trying to take control. Carlos says that the name change is just the first step.

What is the future of this institution in the eyes of this famous diplomat? Carlos thinks that female students will be eliminated all together and that this entire institution will be transformed into one giant ROTC military detachment.

Carlos says he will not stay to see this happen. But he will continue to study here at the Mostly Women's College until that time. Carlos is double majoring in International Affairs and Religion.

Birt Bares Beef, Merchant Crashes Cars

by THE BREEZE and
SCOTT "O.N.J." KAPLAN

Two college employees were arrested by the college police last week according to Chief Bishop.

Seacock I.D. checker Bob Birt was taken into custody after he was caught exposing himself to several female students in the Dome Room last Thursday.

"I'm so disillusioned now," said one of the students. "I always thought Bob was a nice guy, but now we all know the truth: he's a dirty old man."

Executive Vice President A. Ray Merchant was arrested after being caught vandalizing a car in Jefferson Square.

Police strongly suspect that Merchant had a part in the vandalism that was reported in last week's Bullet. Bishop said, "I have reason to believe that Merchant is involved in a Mafia organization which is trying to rid the school of students who oppose the name change by intimidating them.

Police harassment has become an increasingly more visible occurrence at MWC. April 19, College Police Officer Head, under the direction of Billy-bob Anderson, shut down a quiet sit-in on Ball Circle because, the "Officer" said it was too noisy.

Over 100 students took part in the sit-in to protest the highly controversial name change. In a form of rebellion, students have considered organizing themselves. They want to set a designated time to play the same song as loud as their stereotypes will allow. Tentative songs include Take This College and Shove It and Twisted Sister's We're not Gonna Take It.

Madison Hall President Patrick Steenhoek said, "It's about time the administration and the city of Fredericksburg learn who is really in control. We're mad as Hell."

A. Ray Merchant caught in the act.

Announcing...

Lame duck Bullet Business Manager Carol Green will attempt to explain the difference between ice-tea and an ice-tea at Ruby Tuesday's on Friday evening during happy hour. All are welcome to attend.

The mission of the college has been changed. President Anderson announced plans to do away with academics and concentrate solely on "drugs, sex and rock-n-roll."

Wendy LaRue had a date.

In order to alleviate the housing problem, a new option has been presented to students. Those desiring a 24-hour visitation policy may apply for rooms at Ferry Farm Baptist Church. Resident Director will be the Reverend Paige Young.

Graduation has been canceled due to a lack of qualified participants. Those interested in hearing Governor Robb speak are still encouraged to attend. Tickets will cost $25 and seating will be on a first come, first serve basis.

Anderson Letters Reveal Scandal

by SCOTT "O.N.J." KAPLAN

President Billy-bob Anderson gave a number of surprising reasons for the proposed name change at an Open Forum held last week.

He was heard saying that the major reason he wanted to have the name changed was so that no one ever found out that he was kissed by Steve King at Junior Ring Presentation.

"It's been a terrible disappointment to me. At first, I thought it was a simple prank. But, I haven't been able to go out socially since then.

At times Billy-bob was in tears over the incident, leaving some students to feel sorry for him. However, through some investigation, the real reason has been discovered. Anderson does not care about the students, but is attempting to make a bid for the United States Presidency in 1988. Secret letters, which were obtained by King during the kissing incident, show that Billy-bob needs to do something like this in order to show that he can be an image changer. From the letter:

"It is obvious that I will have to screw the students over in order to get anywhere. Who really cares about the students anyway. HA! HA! HA! HA!"

Macho Washington College?

"I would not be so angry if I weren't so mad," my intellectual friend spouted the other day. "They can't do this to me. And after all this time! You would think they would have a little more respect."

I turned to my friend, who was by this time sweating profusely, and said: "It isn't really all that bad."

"You know, you're right."

As long as I've been at this institution of higher learning, I've noticed two things: First, if I don't shave, I grow a beard. Second, everyone likes to complain. Really, there is nothing to complain about. The college staff insures that everyone is happy as clams as long as they stay at the college.

Take for instance the dining hall, Gustatorio Hall (formerly Seacock). Diners have a variety of four rooms (not including the basement and printing office) to go in to and out of. Who could ask for more?

And the housing, what a luxury environment we have. The Dean of Student Happiness and Fun (formerly Residence Life) has seen to it personally that each living space has a floor (wood or tile), at least four walls, and a ceiling. Rooms for underlings (formerly freshmen) next year will be insured, even if the steam tunnels have to be utilized. All this for you.

Even the Dean of Smarts (formerly academics) says that the Smart staff has everything a pion (formerly student) could hope for in the area of mind improvement. Courses will be offered in USA Glorification (formerly american studies), People Watching (formerly anthropology), Making Things (formerly art), Plant and Animal Study (formerly biology), Money Making (formerly business administration) and Test Tube Tinkering (formerly chemistry).

Other subject areas will include Old Things (formerly Classics), New Things (formerly computer science), Borrowed Things (formerly money and banking) and Blue Things (formerly jazz).

Even the extracurricular activities are superior at MWC. Where else can you have the Cannibal Club and the Camping Club combine activities and go on a week-end excursion? (Reports are from members of the former organization that the trip went off deliciously.) There are singing groups (such as the Acid Rock Choir) and the 101 piece string quartet.

For Frisbee buffs, there is a club which owes its entire existence to the throwing of the disc, and for the weightlifting buffs, there is a club which does the same thing (as does the Disco Club).

For those who like being in the public eye, there is a campus radio station (subject to takeover during campus coups), the campus newspaper (same caution applies) and the Exhibitionists Club (a club that guarantees its members recognition in a flash).

The campus also has its complement of political clubs: the Fascist Conservatives (formerly the College Republicans) and the Pinko Liberals (formerly the Young Democrats). The fun loving members of these clubs always love to fire their small arms and cannons (sold to them by Mortar Board, of course) at each other. The next Brown shirt versus Red shirt battle is scheduled for November 5. Don't miss it!

Last, but not least, the department of Sweating and Panting (formerly physical education) entertains the pions and the community with the Gladiatorial (formerly varsity sports) program. This fall the varsity Earthball team should win its division, and the Street Curling champions of the world have only two of their members graduating. In individual contests, MWC will have veteran cheese thrower "Monteray" Jack Colby hurling for the pride of Fredericksburg.

Since the name change, there has been no reason to complain. We at Macho Washington College should be glad with what we have.

Synchronized Soccer Craze Sweeps the College

by THE BREEZE

Following in the footsteps of the synchronized swimming craze has come the advent of a new sport, synchronized soccer.

Next year synchronized soccer will be added to the schedule of varsity sports at Mary Washington.

"I think it will be a big hit," said athletic director Ed Hegmann. "I'm sure in no time synchronized soccer will be as all-American as baseball and apple pie."

Participants in the sport aim at getting their moves as graceful as possible, while attempting to work in unison with at least one other player.

Teams are given ratings for their style, and can be awarded up to 10 points in a game in this category, which are then added to the number of points scored from goals.

All-American soccer player Bill Lohr, with the help of dance instructor Jean Graham Hunt will coach the team.

"I'm very optimistic about the synchronized soccer program," said Lohr. "Because grace and precision are important factors in the game, some students who might not otherwise be able to make an athletic team should make up the nucleus of the team.

Hegmann said that he felt that making synchronized soccer a varsity sport will be quite beneficial to the school's athletic program. He said he feels that by adding this new sport for men the athletic department will be helping to draw more male applicants to the school.

Because it will cost a great deal to properly train the coaches and team members for the up-coming season, club sports which are looking for varsity status will have to wait at least another year, said Hegmann.

He added, "The crew club will just have to float on its own. They'll just have to understand that their attempt to gain varsity status is going to be like rowing against the current."

"I can't believe crew wasn't chosen to become a varsity sport," said crew club president Tom Mulins. "We are mad as a Hell because no synchronized soccer team could ever bring as much glory to the college as the crew club can."

Synchronized soccer coach Bill Lohr demonstrates technique.

Framar Secedes from College

by YECATS NNUD

Protesting their May 11 eviction, this year's residents of Framar have seceded from the college. They have proclaimed their red brick abode "a free and independent sovereign state, above the reproach of college officials and other mere mortals."

Framar, the retirement home for female campus politicians and various other types of bad girls, voted on its new status in a lengthy meeting where residents consumed massive quantities of beer and donuts.

Reigning monarch, Pat Kindheart, commenting on the move in between smoke rings, claimed, "Oh, come on!

Give up our house simply because we're graduating? No. We're staying. We're not finished with our house yet."

Kindheart and lame duck S.A. President, Amy Splash, unveiled plans to turn Framar into a haven for burned-out alumni women. Splash stated that all but one of this year's residents will remain in residence after graduation ceremonies. The sole deserter is Terry Zeterman, former Academic Affairs chairman, who reportedly has failed all of her classes, and will not graduate.

Using the excess donations from their oh, so legal attitude adjustment hours, the women of the house hope to start their own bar in the basement. Kim Sleighride has agreed to guard the drinking facility with her newly established detective agency, Bourbon Security. Stacey Funn has been named manager and lifetime disc jockey. However, the opening date is still unset, for when Funn isn't quitting, she's firing herself.

When asked to comment on Framar's secession, Dean Joan Southward replied, "I have complete faith in the R.A. Karen Altitude, and all the rest of the girls. I just hope they don't change the name of the house without giving out a survey first."

The "Smiling Skipper," Associate Dean of Students, was out of town and unavailable for comment.
